

Chemical Formulas

Coefficient = large number at the front, shows the number of molecules you have

* Multiplies everything!

Subscript = small number after the symbol, tells you how many atoms of that element you have per molecule

* Only multiplies the element right before it!

Every capital letter signifies a new element:

